Purple and Gold

COLORS CHOSEN BY

PT. LOMA "HI" STUDENTS

NOW TRYING "YELLS"

With the selection of purple and gold as the colors for the Point Loma High School, the students are giving enthusiastic consideration to the peppiest yells and the best original songs, special prizes for which have been offered by Principal Ross and the vice principals, Mr. Swenson and Miss Williams.

Four Groups Formed

The students were divided into four groups for the Friday assembly. The older girls met to form plans for a girls' league; the Shavers' club for election of officers; the younger girls were addressed by representatives of the Girl Reserve, Girl Scout and Camp Fire movements; the younger boys by a representative of the Boy Scouts. Speakers were: Miss Warrick, girls' work secretary of the Y. W. C. A., Girl Scout movement and Helen Barksdale, 7B3, a Camp Fire girl. The boys were addressed by Mr. Miller.

CLUBS ORGANIZED

The Point Loma "Hi" orchestra, band and glee clubs have been organized and are holding regular meetings. Baseball teams have been selected and after a regular period of training for each team, inter-class games will be scheduled.

PHYSICAL CULTURE CLASSES

The physical education classes have been organized into units and the following officers elected:

10-11-12 Grades—Nancy Holmboe, captain; Peggy Ashlock, Ellen Lowe, Dorothy Myer, lieutenants.
9B-9A.—Dorothy Simpson, captain; Dorothy Hale, Virginia Davidson, Greta Orcutt, lieutenants.
8A.—Mary Moore, captain, Roberta Sharp, Gertrude Larson, lieutenants.
7A.—Phyllis Near, captain; Maxine Dick, Roberta Lund, lieutenants.
7B1-7B3.—Eveline Long, captain; Ruby Olson, Charlotte Boatman, lieutenants.
7B2-7B4.—Marjorie Stose, captain; Evelyn Monise, Betty Woodworthy, lieutenants.

A leadership class has been formed for the officers to make them more proficient in their duties.

FUTURE FLAG RAISING

Arrangements are being made for the presentation of an American flag to the Point Loma High School from the O. B. Chamber of Commerce, with a special evening of entertainment to follow the flag raising. Acting in accordance with an unanimous resolution passed by the Chamber some months ago, a fine flag has been secured by Kirk Smith, as chairman of the civic improvement committee, and the beautiful bunting will fly from the top of a tall steel pole procured by the Board of Education for the Point Loma High School. Announcement of the date of the flag raising exercises will be duly made when all the plans have been perfected by Principal Ross and Edgar F. Hastings, of the School Board, who have immediate charge of the patriotic affair.

O. B. BASEBALL

BEACH TEAM TO TRAVEL

The Ocean Beach team will play the Escondido nine at Escondido next Sunday, while the local diamond will be the scene of a contest between the Palais Royal club and the Maydole-Smith team.

FAST GAME LOST

TO SPRINGER'S PIRATES

One of the most rapid-fire games ever played on the local diamond resulted in a score of 1 to 0 last Sunday afternoon, when Springer's Pirates just nosed out the Beach bunch. The opposing pitchers were in fine form and received excellent support.

The score:
R. H. E.
Ocean Beach.....0 3 1
Pirates.....1 6 0
Azzell and Tanner; Rosenfeld and Murphy.

Death Angel Takes Toll

EDWARD J. KREMER

ANSWERS FINAL CALL

Passing peacefully away during a period of sleep, Edward J. Kremer responded to the final summons last Saturday, Oct. 10, after a rather protracted illness from which it had been hoped he was recovering. He was the beloved husband of Isabel Kremer and had reached the age of nearly fifty-eight years. He was a native of Missouri and was well and favorably known in Ocean Beach, where he resided with his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James P. Froide, before removing to San Diego some months ago. He was the father of Edward J. Kremer, Jr., of San Francisco, Ray J. Kremer of Kansas City, Mo., Mrs. J. P. Froide of Ocean Beach, Mrs. R. C. Hughes and Charles R. Kremer of San Diego. Impressive funeral services were held at the Smith, Goodbody & Dunn Funeral Home at 8:15 a. m., Tuesday, Oct. 13, thence to St. Ann's Catholic church, where requiem mass was solemnized at 9 o'clock. The floral tokens were numerous and beautiful. Interment took place in Holy Cross cemetery. The sympathy of the community and the condolence of "The Beach News" staff are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Froide and the immediate family in their great hour of bereavement.

PETER CUNNINGHAM PASSES

Following an extended illness, Peter Cunningham passed away Oct. 9 at the age of seventy-three years and five months. Besides his widow, Mary Cunningham, of Ocean Beach, and his son Henry Cunningham, of Fresno, Calif., he is survived by two brothers, Frank L. Cunningham of Encinitas, Calif., and Henry C. Cunningham of Alganac, Mich. The deceased was a native of New York and had once been a resident of Alaska. Following funeral services in San Diego, requiem mass was solemnized at the Sacred Heart Catholic church in Ocean Beach, and interment took place in Holy Cross cemetery.

L. H. MARTIN PASSES AWAY

At the age of nearly seventy years, Levi Henry Martin, of Long Branch avenue, passed away Oct. 10, after a very brief illness. He was the husband of Elizabeth Martin of Ocean Beach, father of Jesse P. Dale and Frank Martin of Seattle, Wash., and stepfather of John W. and Fred E. Roppel of Oregon City, Ore.; Mrs. Ida Belle M. Thomas and George C. Roppel of Seattle, Wash. The deceased was a native of Ohio. Funeral services were held at the Johnson-Saum chapel in San Diego.

DEMISE OF MRS. S. A. BROWN

Funeral services were held last Monday for Mrs. Sarah Ann Brown, who passed away in San Diego, Oct. 8, after a brief illness. She was a native of Ireland and was the wife of John D. Brown and sister of William Walker, of Ocean Beach. Interment took place at Greenwood cemetery.

COLOR LINE ALLEGED

IN "LOTTO" GAME

In separately filed complaints, recently entered in the Superior Court, three women have brought suit for damages against Phil Shaffer, alleging that they were not allowed to play in a beach "lotto" game because of race and color. The complainants' names are given as Zenobia Canter, Bertha Sanlo and Pearl Payne, and they ask for $5,000 damages each.

BUILDING HOMES

B. L. Junker is to erect a fine home at 2875 Rosecrans street, Roseville, at a cost of $12,000.

R. MacLachlan, cottage, 4627 Larkspur, Ocean Beach, $1000.

"It is regretted that a recent fire in the Department of Commerce building destroyed many valuable records relating to the construction of lighthouse on the Pacific Coast, and such as were saved are not in condition for easy examination. It is therefore impracticable to verify your list of the Keepers, but one record here indicates that G. B. Tolman was the first Keeper of old Point Loma light and that A. Geeran was the assistant Keeper."

I will let the foregoing list stand, because I think it approaches accuracy. The gap of 1869 I am able to supply from three sources. Smythe at page 702 of his History of San Diego, says "John D. Jenkins served in 1869 and after him Enos A. Wall..." Mrs. Alonzo E. Horton, the first white woman to live on Point Loma (she was then Mrs. William Knapp) who at eighty remembers clearly her first years here, dictated this recently to me:

"Some of the people in Old Town were the most blue-blooded Spanish. They were the only social life I had when I came over to town. The steamer arrived about once a week. Mail used to be two weeks getting to me from Massachusetts. When the steamer was in sight, Mr. Jenkins, the keeper, would raise the flag on the lighthouse."

"The flag is up!"

It was the signal for the Knapps in Roseville and for the Browns at La Playa to saddle their horses or to hoist sails, to run over to Old Town, there to get the New England or the San Francisco mail; to buy supplies from Mr. Thomas Whaley, whose brick store building with residence adjoining you see the Old Town boulevard; to make calls on the Estudillos...the Pedrenas...the Bandinis.

And of the presence of Mr. Jenkins as keeper of the lighthouse I repeat the description of Mr. W. Jeff Gatewood, first editor of the San Diego Union (established in 1868) who in January 1869 gives nearly a column to his excursion over here at the invitation of that exemplary first citizen, E. W. Morse.

"...visited the airy lighthouse on Point Loma. The day was one of the many indescribable lovely..."

"The horses cantered gaily over the green sward, along the water's verge and our friends took particular pains to inform us that we were through the principal street of Rose City...A few minutes more and we were among the ruins of the Playa. At the end of a little wooden walk not far from the shore stands a cabin on stilts in which is kept the tidal gauge. Back some distance from the bay stands an old dilapidated building once occupied by the government as a customs house; but the only building in which a live soul could be seen was the residence of Mrs. Brown. This place is five miles from Old Town and in years 'lang syne' was the place of landing for vessels entering the port to trade for hides. It was then and by the old residents is still called the 'Hide House.'"

"Here we turned around the old Customs House and began the ascent of the mountain. The road though bad is not at all difficult. A very little labor would make it a good one. We passed beside some yawning pits and chasms made by the winter torrents in their mad career from the summit to the bay—on either hand upon the mountain side the wild sage and southernwood were putting out their leaves and the young tender blades of grass and graceful vines and ferns in every shade of green peeped from the fruitful earth..."

Mission Beach News Notes

By MRS. F. G. GREENFIELD
726 Ormond Court

Special Representative
For "The Beach News"

Press executive for Mission Beach Chamber of Commerce.

The Mission Beach Chamber of Commerce held a special executive meeting last Tuesday evening at the home of Harry Turner. Most interesting and satisfying reports were given, especially of the "sidewalk scare" so many have felt. We wish to assure all that the cards issued by the city were printed incorrectly. The sidewalks are to be reduced two feet for the cement ones only through the business section of the "Asher Tract." The widening of the boulevard an extra two feet throughout that part will allow persons to park cars while shopping and lessen the danger to traffic. If people would only come to the chamber of commerce meetings instead of worrying among themselves, presenting petitions that only mix things up at the city hall, they would receive valuable information from those who are working for the interest and betterment of the community as a whole.

The blue-prints for the new sidewalks are spaced for the accommodation of electrical street standards. Thus, if sidewalks are placed before lamps, the required base dimensions are left open for the standard. We expect the Mission Beach lighting system to be installed by the first of the year. We wish to assure all that there is no outside concern holding back our proposed improvements. Petitions of one kind and another caused some contention and only muddled things, but all is cleared up at last, and rest assured, good people, that we as a "peppy" organization of chamber executives are out to get things done! And there is no stopping us toward the upbuilding and growth of our community.

Concerning the protest and objections in regard to the Pickering pier people and Scripps properties annexing into our sewer system, it is well to correct mistaken rumors in regard to same and state that the connections to our sewer are specified and limited to Pacific avenue. Nothing further can enter our sewer system. Mr. Scripps is building for his property an immense septic tank, until such time when Pacific Beach secures its own sewer system.

Now, then, for boosting! How many owners have connected with the new sewer system? Let us all act at once, before notices are sent out compelling immediate connections. The M. B. Chamber asks for a "special clean-up" of all empty lots as well as your own yard. Beautify along with other development. We are going after the garbage collectors and expect results when we can obtain a hearing from the city manager. Alleyways are the place for collections and not the highways, and we hope to notify you soon about this adjustment.

REMEMBER THIS DATE

Tuesday, Nov. 17, at 7:30 p. m., an especially attractive and jolly chamber meeting for the whole of Mission Beach residents and others interested will be held at Shirley cottage. We are telling you now so that there will be plenty of time to plan and set this date aside for this particular "stunt." Ladies and gentlemen, it is to be a fancy box social to help enlarge our treasury. The small membership fee does not carry far, for the necessary expenses, and we ask your hearty support and enthusiasm in helping to make this affair a success. Ladies, you must keep a secret this once. Do not let your husband or sweetheart or brother see the box or basket you are arranging for the party. Place your name inside box only. These are all to be auctioned off to the highest bidder, and the gentleman, upon opening his purchase, finds his dinner partner, each box having lunch for two. Coffee will be served by the committee in charge, and dancing will fill the remaining hours. A good old-fashioned time and, if you wish, put on your old-fashioned bib and tucker and come take your lady to supper. Remember the date. We expect a big crowd and lots of fun on Tuesday night, Nov. 17.

Civic Center Playground

BOND ISSUE QUESTION

REFERRED TO CITY MGR.

FOR EARLY REPORT

The advisability of a proposed special district bond issue election for the installation of public playgrounds at Ocean Beach was referred this week by the council to City Manager Fred Rhodes for an early report.

It has been ruled by Deputy City Attorney M. B. Thorp that a petition for a special election is not jurisdictional and that the creation of an assessment district and the holding of such an election must be done on the initiative of the council.

Opponents of the issue contend that Ocean Beach is already paying taxes on all other municipal playgrounds many miles away and the burden of the local proposition should be carried by the city at large.

Manager Rhodes informed the council that under the original plan a street was to be closed, but that this street (Santa Monica avenue) has been recently paved and will be kept open permanently.

It was also brought forth that a new library building was to form part of the civic center improvement, and the failure of a city bond issue for that purpose, will necessitate other plans and provisions.

Ocean Theatre

FILM FAVORITES IN

POPULAR PRODUCTIONS

With the dramatic sensation, "Capital Punishment," at the Ocean Theatre tonight (Saturday), the bills for the following week are all of equally high calibre. For Sunday there will be "Love's Whirlpool," with James Kirkwood, Lila Lee and Madge Bellamy. The big midweek special Tuesday and Wednesday will introduce a famous Gansner production entitled "White Man," with Alice Joyce, Kenneth Harlan and Walter Long in the leading roles. Johnny Hines will wind up the week Thursday and Friday with "The Early Bird," a real comedy scream.

Violet And Gold

(Reported by SAM LIPSETT)

The meeting of Troop 29 last Friday night was very interesting and enjoyable to all present.

Dues were established at twenty-five cents per month; the money to be earned by the scout. One-dollar and fifteen cents was collected by the treasurer.

After the regular meeting boxing and wrestling bouts were held, and games were played. A kangaroo court was held, the officers being: Willis Kenline, Judge; Samuel Lipsett, prosecuting attorney; and Harold Belmont, defensive council. Louis Farrington was convicted of "stopping his toe on a public sidewalk," and sentenced to one round of the "spanking machine."

Two new applicants for scouts were present, and were assigned to patrols. Under Mr. Dunns' excellent leadership it is easy to predict the day when Ocean Beach will have a full troop of first-class scouts.

Louis Farrington was elected assistant patrol-leader of the Beaver Patrol.

PRELIMINARIES FOR PAVING

Workmen have been busy this week laying new curbing at alley and street intersections on De Foe and Bacon streets, preparatory to paving operations. A new water line is also being laid on Bacon street.

PRIZE LETTER CONTEST

SCHEDULED FOR SUNDAY

WITH MONEY AWARDS

An excellent opportunity to secure $100 in gold is offered by the John P. Mills Organization in a prize letter contest to be held on Point Loma tomorrow, Sunday, October 18. All that is necessary to become a winner is to write a letter telling John P. Mills what you think of Point Loma as a high-grade residential district. The letters received will be read at the sales tent and the prize-winners will be selected by the audience. The first prize will be $50 in gold for the best letter, and $35 and $15 for the next two respectively.

Now's the time "to take your pen in hand" and enter the contest for the prize letters, the only condition being that you'll have to be present when the letters are read in order to be acknowledged a winner. Please mention that you saw the announcement in "The Beach News" and here's good luck to you.

"A Night In Hawaii"

OCTOBER CARNIVAL

FEATURED NEXT WEEK

BY MANAGER ED KICKHAM

There'll be a dozen happy "ukulele ladies" next Wednesday night, Oct. 21, when twelve genuine Kalaka ukuleles will be given away as prizes by Manager Ed Kickham at the Mission Beach Roller Rink. This jolly gift event will be followed on Friday night, Oct. 23, by a brilliant October carnival, which will be replete with surprises for all patrons. And don't forget the "Broom Ball" every Thursday night, while the polo contest each Tuesday evening at 9 o'clock is just filled with thrills.

"Jazzin' Movie House"

NEW STRAND THEATRE

APPROACHING COMPLETION

FOR NOVEMBER OPENING

Plasterers are busy finishing the interior of the auditorium of the new Strand Theatre and the "jazzing" of the walls and ceiling will be completed in a few days in readiness for the decorative work. With the laying of the slanting floor next week Manager Ray Ericsson will begin assembling the new chairs and loge seats, while Mrs. Norma Ericsson is already giving the velvet hangings a great deal of artistic attention. The new theatre will be a dream in shades of blue and gold and will be ready for occupancy in another fortnight or so.

Chicago's police department is thinking of adopting a bullet-proof shield for use in fighting bandits. Capt. John Stege is shown letting Detective Shannon fire at him when protected by the shield.

Four Minutes to Place New Span

A new 216-foot span was rolled into place on the new Florida East Coast railway bridge across the St. Johns river at Jacksonville, Fla., in four minutes. The span was erected on specially built falsework, near the bridge site, then barges filled with water were pulled beneath it. The span weighs 1,300,000 pounds, and is shown here being put in place.

Community Building

State of Transition

Mars Beauty of City

The bent of our towns and cities to ugliness is no doubt an effect resulting from two causes. The first and more important of these causes is the loss of tradition and a consequent blind uncertainty of purpose; the second is the state of transition between one motive and another. Was ever transition beautiful? Never. Shifting standards are productive of a thousand inharmonies. Every one of our cities is a clamorous discord.

Even where the old dirt or gravel path between the lilacs and the cinnamon roses remains, its simple beauty is an affliction, because the neighboring concrete walk or motor car track laughs it to scorn. In front of the grave and sweet colonial dwelling, a square two-car garage squats in absolute ferocity on the very edge of the sidewalk. The necessary telephone poles spoil the beauty of the surviving old trees.

Everywhere, the effort to do something; everywhere, no doubt, the effort to create something beautiful, or at least something pretty; but nowhere any intelligent concurrence in a plan, nowhere a suggestion of harmony. We have wonderful, splendid business buildings, and between them rows of one or two-story business barracks, with poles, billboards, vacant lots with the rubbish of waste or construction. Things are in the making, and making is disorder.—Boston Transcript.

Septic Tank Makes for Safe Sewage Disposal

In the country, where wells are used, care should be given to a safe disposal of sewage. The introduction of the water system and modern plumbing has brought about a much greater use of water and a consequent question as to the safe disposal of the increased sewage, the New York World says.

The old-fashioned cesspool in a loose soil might be able to take care of a larger amount of sewage, while the pores of the more compact soil are apt to clog with semi-solid matter and require frequent cleaning. It is possible to place a cesspool so that the sewage will not contaminate the water supply, but its continued safety is always open to question.

The improved method of sewage disposal requires a septic tank through which all sewage passes slowly and is then distributed over a suitable area through tile pipe just below the surface of the ground.

This treatment of sewage is highly scientific and costs but little more than the cesspool. The best feature is that it is safe. The septic tank is placed below frost outside, or if necessary in the cellar, the point being that it must not be colder than 50 degrees and pipe line connecting must be able to carry off and dispose of the fluid discharged, and the tank should have capacity enough to insure time for the septic action to take place.

Distinctive Town Styles

The time is not far distant when our countryside will be dotted with villages, each employing a distinctive style of architecture, imparting an atmosphere of foreign lands to the traveler. The designing of buildings for such a village provides large and fascinating fields for the architect, and the problems to be solved have unlimited possibilities.

A successful solution must first preclude monotony that usually is associated in cases where one style of architecture is used. The entire village must be fundamentally a composition of mass and color; the details and variations will follow in the natural course of development. This method of building entails no greater expense than the usual way, but requires a greater amount of study and thought. The results obtained, however, are gratifying and worthwhile.—Exchange.

Building Better Homes

The building industry is perhaps the nation's most accurate index of improved standards of living by the people. It is in the home that one finds expression given to the universal desire of all persons to live more conveniently, comfortably and efficiently. One of the outstanding characteristics of Americans is our spirit of progress. As succeeding generations become better educated and more prosperous, there is fostered a corresponding desire to live in more agreeable and comfortable surroundings. Inventions and innovations are constantly being introduced which raise the standards of convenience and efficiency in the average American home.

Plan to Shift Taxation

Los Angeles will vote on an amendment to the constitution of the state which exempts from taxation $2,000 worth of improvements on land to each individual taxpayer, and exempts all personal property from ordinary taxation. This, it is contended, will shift some of the burden of present taxation from the active business of farming, home owning, merchandising and manufacturing, to the less useful business of owning and holding vacant land for speculative profits.

Doing Away With Plugs and Jacks

Elimination of Attachments Is Ridding Receivers of Trouble Makers.

The general use of multi-tube receivers and superpower broadcasting stations has done much to eliminate the old system of using several jacks in a radio set. The latest receivers are using only one jack at the most, to which the loud speaker can be connected. Many of them are eliminating all jacks and providing binding posts in the rear of the set for the loud-speaker connections.

The elimination of plugs and jacks is ridding receivers of two very common sources of trouble.

Any receiver is better off without jacks, for that matter. Wiring is greatly simplified, capacity of the wiring is reduced, and the front panel is improved in appearance. The use of jacks where any audio transformer is used with high primary impedance, such as the high-quality, low-ratio audio transformers that are becoming more and more popular, is hazardous.

500,000 Ohm Variable Resistance to Prevent Noisy Reception.

The sudden surge of current caused by the opening or closing of a jack circuit is likely to burn out fine wire used in winding the transformer core.

Volume Must Be Controlled.

A serious problem presents itself however, when jacks are eliminated. The volume of the receiver must be controlled. If the rheostats are turned low, volume will be reduced, but at the expense of clarity. If turned too low, distortion results. Partially detuning the receiver, with the tubes operating at their most efficient setting of the rheostats is often done. In this day of congested broadcasting, however, such a procedure will result in interference between stations.

Engineers have been working to devise means of softening the tone without destroying quality. Resistances across the primary and secondary windings of transformers are sometimes used, as well as a bank of fixed resistances in series with the output of the last tube, proving entirely satisfactory.

Best tone quality is maintained with a fixed resistance across the secondary of the transformer, and volume controlled by using a variable center contact like a potentiometer, connecting this contact to the grid of the next tube. Approximately 500,000 ohms puts the proper load on the transformer for best results, while the variable arm must have perfectly smooth regulation from zero to the maximum resistance.

Three Terminals.

Such a resistance is the centralab modulator. This is supplied with three terminals, precisely like a potentiometer except that the resistance is a graphite ring upon which a metal disc is pressed to make contact. All of the rubbing and wear comes between the metal disc and pressure arm which does not make the electrical contact, and therefore cannot cause noise even after long service. The resistance strip remains unharmed by the pressure contact of the disc, whereas the usual variable resistance wears quickly from the direct friction of the contact arm on the resistance.

When connected in an audio amplifying circuit, as shown by the accompanying diagram, the modulator gives noiseless adjustment to any desired tone volume from a whisper to maximum loudness, with improved quality of reproduction.

How to Prevent Mistakes in Connecting Your Set

To prevent mistakes when connecting up a set from a diagram start at the antenna binding post and connect it to the instrument. When this connection has been completed draw over that connection with a colored pencil. This system will show that that connection is complete. Then from the other terminal of the same instrument connect a wire to the next instrument. Cover this connection with a colored pencil line, and do the same thing with every line. When all the connections are redrawn in colored pencil it will show that everything is completed and that it has been done correctly.

Modern Vacuum Tubes Have Coated Filament

The effective operation of any vacuum tube is not governed by the brilliancy of the filament. As a matter of fact, one should never use the brilliancy of the filament as an indicator that the tube is working properly. Modern vacuum tubes have a coating placed over the filament which greatly increases the electron emission. The filament merely serves as a heater to generate the emission of electrons. One will find that with tubes using the coated filament the life of the tubes is not governed by the filament burning out, but by the loss or deterioration of the coating on the filament. When this happens the tubes will remain lit, but no signals will be heard.

GHASTLY RITES OF VODOO AT GATES OF PARIS

Sacrifice to Serpent Made by Blacks Described by Frenchman.

The other day Marcel Nedaud, the well-known authority on French agriculture and economy and a pioneer in aviation war fiction, told in Le Petit Journal of a voodoo gathering near Paris which he attended as a favored spectator. He said:

"All the transplanted African races were represented. A pure negro sat next to a quadroon; not far from them was a Congolese woman, holding a whimpering baby in her arms. Well up from them all was an atmosphere heavy with animality, of morbid and uprooted human beings who had broken all ties with nature and were attached to their native soil only by the bond of a criminal mystery."

"Gradually the agglomeration took shape. A circle formed in the clearing. Two men brought in a sort of cage, which they placed near the center and put some burning sticks to one side of it."

Beginning of Ceremony.

"A gong sounded near me. The circle closed in. The blacks now knelt instead of squatting. A tall old man, clothed in a white mantle, beneath which his polished shoes could be seen, stationed himself between the cage and the fire. He stood motionless for some minutes, his white locks in striking contrast with his dusky face."

He intoned a Vague Rhythm.

Then he intoned a vague rhythm, interrupted by various bust contortions. "With arms extended in supplication and heads lifted imploringly, the listeners repeated at intervals the old man's litanies."

"The priest turned to the priestesses. They held out to him little children, whose eyes now rolled with fright."

"The priestesses seemed to implore the high priest to choose among their sons. He selected one boy, and placed him before the cage. In the child's arms he put a very small kid, which was bleating. An assistant brought in a tub, already half-full of a brownish liquid."

Promise of Rum to Come.

"Rum," my companion murmured. He was already licking his lips.

"There was a last invocation, followed by a series of whistlings. A big serpent came out of the cage. A drum was beaten near him."

"The old man straightened up and brandished a knife over the child's head. I was about to make an outcry. The blade, glittering in the rays from the fire, sank into the kid's throat. The blood dripped in the tub. A deep rattle rose from a hundred anguished breasts."

"The knife descended from the throat to the chest, which it tore open. The priest seized the heart, which he stuck on a long needle and offered to the moon. He threw the liver to the serpent, which slowly swallowed it."

"His majesty the devil is satisfied," my neighbor clucked.

The circle broke up and rushed for the bucket. Black faces plunged into it and reappeared coated with blood and alcohol. Then they began to dance. Under the impassive moon it seemed to excite all the latent, savage instincts of the hot countries. Sometimes a dancer fell down exhausted. The others kicked him with their feet, invoking the satan-king, the ancient serpent, who, satiated with food, dancing and cries, no longer extended from his cage anything but his little head, watching with cold eyes the leaps and bounds of his faithful from beyond the seas—the initiates of Gobi, the Voodooists.

"And all this happened in May, 1925, less than ten kilometers away from Paris."

"Big Game" Increasing in the United States

The rangers in the forest service took a census last year of the big game in the federal forests, and the recently published report allays the fear that such game is succumbing to the onslaughts of sportsmen.

"Big game," as technically used, includes antelope, bear, buffalo, elk, moose, mountain goat and mountain sheep. The census covers 159 forests, and for the first time enumerates the bear as big game.

The buffalo, as Americans miscall the bison, was for the first time dropped from the census, as bison in the United States no longer are "game," being in guarded herds. Nor did the rangers reckon game outside of parks and forests, though such animals are numerous.

There are about 5,000 antelope, or prong-horns, chiefly in Arizona and Idaho, though Nevada and Oregon jointly have a great herd not in a federal forest. The bears comprise 5,600 grizzlies, virtually all in Alaska, though Montana has a few, and 38,700 black or brown. Deer number 550,500, increasing by nearly 40,000 in the year. Every forest boasts an increase of elk, the number being 52,600. Moose, however, numbered only 5,100 in 1924, whereas in 1923 there were 8,000. Wild goats and wild sheep numbered, respectively, 17,200 and 12,400, each increasing slightly. The total of big game was 687,000 animals under protection by the national government.

Wild animals left to themselves in protected reserves steadily multiply. The bear is a costly nuisance to farmers and stockmen, but all other big game is harmless and an ornament. It should be given every protection.

Millions of Idle Money

There are, it is estimated by the actuary of the United States treasury, something more than 8,000 misers in this country, who are hoarding and keeping out of circulation more than $400,000,000, none of which is earning a dollar.

Contrast the miserly waste of money with the good which is being done with the $531,000,000 owned by the 65 leading colleges of the United States.

From their investments these colleges derive an annual income of about $27,000,000. Assuming that the smaller colleges not included in this list of 65 larger centers of education have an annual income of only $13,000,000 from their invested funds, we arrive at the annual educational fund of $40,000,000. This divided among the 380,000 students of both sexes in all the universities and colleges allows about $106 a year per student.

By making this money work, still other contributions are made to the wealth and progress of the country.—Thrift Magazine.

Lady Hypercritical

Miss Lorraine Elizabeth Wooster gave as one of her reasons for opposing the adoption of the Winston primer the fact that one of the pictures in the much discussed textbook shows a pair of billy goat horns attached to the head of a nanny goat. We have been quite a consistent supporter of Lorraine Elizabeth since our acquaintance was formed in a Salina boarding house in the dear, dead days beyond recall when we were both twenty-one, but this particular objection to the Winston primer appears to us to be rather far-fetched. Assuming that during the period of our acquaintance with Lorraine Elizabeth, the nanny goat has undergone the same wonderful changes as the female of our species, we see nothing wrong in a picture that represents a nanny goat with a pair of horns attached to her head.—Jack Harrison, in Beloit (Kan.) Gazette.

Too Blind

Dr. Cornelius Gurliitt, of the Society of German Architects, said as he embarked for home on the Thuringia: "The German people have awakened. Blind obedience was their trouble in the past."

"Hans," said a German school teacher, "supposing now, Hans, a tiger was to come at you to eat you up—what would you do?"

"Nothing, teacher," said little Hans quietly.

"What? Nothing? Wouldn't you even scream for help?"

"Oh, no, teacher."

"My goodness, Hans, why not?"

"Because, teacher, my papa says I mustn't never talk at meal times."

Gr-r-r!

Little Doreen Turner and Pal, the famous movie dog, are great friends. She is almost the only person besides Pal's owner whom the dog will obey.

One day, during the making of a picture, some of the extras began playing the little girl, until, in exasperation, she ran off the set. Presently she returned with Pal, and walking up to the group said:

"Now say those things again, and I'll bite you with my dog."—Los Angeles Times.

ALLIGATORS' APPETITES

"Hello," said the keeper to the alligators.

They were lying about in their zoo tank. Some were stretched out on the surrounding boards.

As soon as the keeper said "hello," every alligator rushed toward the end of the tank near where the keeper was standing.

The keeper did not go too near them for he didn't dare. They are liable to bite off an arm if they are hungry in their eagerness to get at the food being handed to them.

He gave them their dinner and then they went back to sleep and to sleep soundly, too.

Later on he spoke to them, but they paid no attention.

It was a little while after this that Miss Alice Alligator began to speak to Miss Agnes Alligator. They quite often talked together and usually in much the same way.

"Good day, Miss Agnes," said Miss Alice in alligator talk.

"Good day," splashed Miss Agnes.

"How are you feeling?" inquired Miss Alice.

"I'm beginning to feel hungry," said Miss Agnes.

"If I hadn't been feeling a little hungry I wouldn't have spoken to you."

"The same is true of me," said Miss Alice. "You know I think a good appetite is the greatest joy in the world."

"I know of no other joy so great," said Miss Agnes, "except that of having plenty of food to match the appetite."

"Oh, yes," said Miss Alice, "Oh, yes."

"Before I came to the zoo," Miss Alice continued, "my mamma told me that it was the nature of the alligator to be fonder of food than of anything else.

"Good Day," Splashed Miss Agnes.

"She said that each spring she laid sixty or eighty eggs which she would hatch out in a mound of brush and dry grass."

"She said the heat helped the hatching, which made less work for her."

"She didn't care to work hard."

"She was fond of an easy life. She was a usual alligator, in other words."

"I understand," said Miss Agnes.

"Well," continued Miss Alice, "she also told me that she guarded her eggs closely to see that no harm came to them—except—except—except—except—except—and here is the great point of my tale—except when she was hungry!"

"Then she'd quite forget about the eggs which would soon be young alligators, and she would go off in search of food."

"Nothing," she said, was so important as food and a good appetite, not even the children."

"My mother told me the same thing," said Miss Agnes. "And she also said that once the eggs had become baby alligators they could look after themselves."

"She didn't believe in looking after them and spoiling them and she said that all mother alligators agreed with her."

"If they bothered her she would eat them as would the daddy alligators, which, she said, was a sure punishment against them bothering her again and having to be told they must not be naughty again."

"It's sensible," said Miss Agnes, "not to fuss over anything but our own appetites which are so good, and our food."

"Some people," said Miss Alice, "say the same thing over and over again."

"Don't do this. Don't do that. Don't let me have to speak to you another time. Now do you hear me?"

"No, none of that nonsense for mother alligators. Appetites and food are all-important with them."

And, once more, the alligators seemed to show signs of life for they were hungry again!

A Bible Character

I was a Philistine, strong in my might. Conceded and proud as could be. The foes of my nation were plainly in sight.

And I thought they would cowardly flee.

So I challenged them all to fight me alone.

And I strutted and swelled with disdain.

But a boy came along with a sling and a stone.

And I found all my boasting was vain.

His name was Goliath.

"Sun Never Sets"

The time is not far distant when the king of England will be able to speak to all the lands under the British flag through a radio broadcasting station, Marconi, the wireless expert, predicts.

Confined "Back" Fan

A prolific writer of striking letters to newspapers, Sir Harry Poland of London, at ninety-six boasts that he owes his long life and enduring physical and mental vitality to the fact that he never married.

His Idea

"Here's a queer item in the paper," said Mrs. Johnson in the midst of her reading. "A feller, over at Ten Degrees, slipped in a bathtub tuffer day, and fell and broke three ribs."

"I've been sorter studying for a year or so about buying a bathtub," replied Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge, "but I reckon I'd better give up the idea; them bathtubs is too devilish—p'tn!—dangerous."—Kansas City Star.

Gave Skunks Right of Way

A party of Bangor motorists returning from Wintport, Maine, halted their car to let a moving obstruction have the right-of-way. The obstruction consisted of a family of skunks, including father, mother and three children, crossing the road in solemn single file.

Alert Fire Woman

Two More Payments

"Say, Mary, how much more do we owe the doctor?" asked an East side man of his wife.

"Why, only $10," she replied.

"Oh, goody," spoke up the oldest son. "In two more payments the baby is ours."

Fooled by Scarecrow

For several days a patient fisherman has been noted standing on the shore of a certain pond in Wilton, N. H. Day after day he stood there. A particularly constant watcher felt sure the man was getting short trout, and notified a game warden. However, the watcher's eyes are in need of correction, for the man turned out to be a well-fashioned scarecrow.

Tribute to Brave Woman

A monument to Mrs. Edith Lacey, an American welfare worker who lost her life in the Japanese earthquake of 1923, has been dedicated by the Yokohama Young Women's Christian association. Mrs. Lacey was a leader in the association. The monument is in the form of a house which is to be used as a rest and recreation center for the girls of Yokohama and is the gift of Mrs. Lacey's father, Dr. Charles C. Roosa of Buffalo, N. Y.

Making Signals Secret

Invisible light is opening up a new method of sending secret signals in warfare. Flash signals are invisible to all but the receiver of the message, and can be sent in full sunlight for a distance of from five to eight miles. Infra-red rays, too long to be seen, cause certain dyes and pigments to become more luminous. The receiver of the message is equipped with a tinted shade for his field glasses, similar in color to the shade used in the signal lamp.

"Excuse Me" or "Pardon Me"

Both of these phrases have been in reputable literary use in England for more than three centuries, and are thoroughly established as idioms. (See Shakespeare's "Troilus and Cressida," act 1, scene 2.) Only a person who is ignorant of this fact would condemn their use, which continues among the cultured people of our time. Curiously enough 30 years ago "Excuse me" found favor with us and "Pardon me" was preferred by the English. Ten years later the table was turned and "Excuse me" found favor with the English while "Pardon me" was preferred by ourselves. "I beg your pardon" when an apology is made. "Sorry" is an English vulgarism of the near-polite who are in too great a hurry to say "I am sorry" or "I am very sorry" when they wish to express regret in different degrees.—Literary Digest.

(Conclusion)

At the hotel I found my room with all my personal effects just as I had left them six days before and the door open. Ella the chamber girl had the room in good order. There she was with the usual smile and barefooted; also a nice pitcher of warm water for my toilet. It seemed like getting home again. Dropped into the Cafe, where Oscar's head girl in charge saw that I had some refreshments. By the way, this girl Jeannette is said to be one of the finest looking girls on the islands. I had the pleasure of visiting at her home, and had a delightful visit with her mother and sisters. I took her pictures in a group. Mrs. Thompson is the mother of twelve children, her husband, (who was an American) and four children died in the "flu" epidemic of 1918. Mrs. Thompson is a fine motherly looking woman, a pure blooded native, and connected with the best of the old line of native families. They have a nice home, situated amongst a grove of coconuts.

Two incidents that happened in Papeete—before I went on the trip to Moorea—I must relate.

The ship Clan Meworter, one of 62 ships of the Clans, sailing out of Glasgow, their home port—arrived in Papeete about July 10th. I soon became acquainted with its officers—our short acquaintance ripened into friendship—and I was invited on board their ship for dinner. While at dinner, the Chief Officer said—Daly, do you know that this ship is on fire, and has been for several days—also it is not yet under control. The coal bunkers are afire. One would have never known it—if he had not been informed of the fact. Two days later, when I entertained the same men at a cafe, they informed me the fire was under control, but could not sail until it was out. At that time they extended to me an invitation to go with them on board their ship, and that they would be glad to take me as their guest, to the Marquesas islands, their next stop.

The 13th of July, found Papeete in gala attire—all ready for the big show. I again met my friends from the Clan Meworter, at Oscar's pavilion, one of the places of entertainment on the pike, the Chief officer told me that they would have their ship all decorated the next day in honor of the Fete, and in courtesy to the French. He said he would like to have me come down to his ship on the following morning, and see the decorations.

The next morning I started down to the pier where the Clan Meworter was docked. Just as I got in front of the famous Bougainvillea Club I met the first officer. He said come with me, I wish to show you something. He went upon the veranda of the club, when he said, Mr. Daly, you see all the flags on the ship. And now look and see that large American flag in the center—that flag, Mr. Daly, was placed there in your honor. I could hardly reply—and it was some minutes before I did.

At the same hotel that I stopped at, was a young lady, who was maid for a San Francisco family. One evening Marie accepted my invitation to attend the Moderne theater, a moving picture house. We had no more than got comfortable in our seats (a Chaplin picture was on the screen) when a cry of FIRE rang out. A rush for the doors, a real panic stricken crowd, I braced myself with both elbows out, so as to protect Marie in front of me. At last we were in the open. It was a film that had caught fire. In a little while we were back again in the theater—as though nothing had happened. Marie seemed to enjoy the joke. I didn't, as I know how crazy most all classes of people get when the cry of FIRE rings out. A few days after—I learned that the operator who had great presence of mind—he picked up the burning film, and cast it out into the street. His both hands and arms were so badly burned, that they had to be amputated. And he perhaps saved the lives of many—who never gave him a thought.

There are many points of interest on many other of the islands in this group. But my time was limited, some important business matters were calling me home.

Steamship day, is an important day for Papeete—as one is practically isolated on this island. Mail once a month, and no newspapers published in Tahiti.

I am returning home on the S. S. "Tahiti" the same ship that I came on. This is good news, as I know most of the officers and crew.

The Steamship has arrived, and the wharf is crowded with people bidding their loved ones farewell. Many of my friends are here also. I will never forget the time—when my dear friend McCormack placed a beautiful wreath of coral around my neck (a real work of art) also a string of dainty little shells. It is said—that when a coral wreath is placed on one's head in departing from the islands—he is sure to return some day. Then came other friends, with with pretty wreaths of flowers, five floral wreaths in all, and made from the sweet scented Tiare Tahiti. This flower is shaped some like a magnolia blossom, only smaller—and much sweeter than the night blooming jasmine.

Oscar's Tahitian Band furnished music for this farewell occasion, playing mostly American airs. The writer knew most of the bandmen, and if I were to state just why this band was there, the reader might not understand, so I will omit that part, as I am sensitive about this article reading in a boastful, or egoism manner.

The ship began moving out into the bay—and the band was playing that touching song ALOHA. Will I return to this Paradise? and its lovely people—it's my hope — au revoir Tahiti.

KEEPING WELL GETTING DOWN TO ESSENTIALS
DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

DR. HUBERT WORK, secretary of the interior, is not only a successful politician and an able executive;
he is also a physician of national reputation and the founder of a great sanitarium in Colorado for nervous and mental patients.

This wide and varied experience has given him an unusually broad knowledge of the human body and the human mind.

In a recent address he said: "There are only three real human needs.
These are food, shelter and sleep. If you have the first two, the third comes unbidden. These necessities cost very little. Every other requirement in life is a luxury. In spite of the general talk about the high cost of living, there probably has never been a time when the actual necessities of life cost less, in terms of human labor, than they do today."

The increased cost of living which we hear so much about is not for real necessities but for luxuries and non-essentials. We are being deluged and smothered today with innumerable possessions which we do not need and which do not make us any happier or healthier. To get money for these luxuries, we spend the greater part of our time and strength.

No one would wish to go back to the plane of the Digger Indians or the cavemen. But many of our belongings today only add to our worries. Look over any shop window and count the number of things in it which you really need. Go through your house and count the things in it that add to your work and worries and don't add to your real enjoyment.

The constant effort to get things and to add to our belongings is not only a daily strain on our pocketbooks, but is also a daily drain on our nervous systems.

Doctor Work knows this, as a physician and nerve specialist. So he pleads not only for a simpler life but also for a life nearer the soil. He knows that strong, healthy bodies as well as well-balanced, capable minds need sunlight and fresh air and simple surroundings in which to develop.

Our greatest statesmen and leaders in all lines have come from the farm.
Really great men can only come from generations of ancestors who lived simply and stored up nerve power.

City life is too hurried and crowded to permit of proper development. The place for strong men and women to develop is out of doors, not in city hotels and apartment houses.

Just as fasting is good for the body,
so it is good for the mind and the soul to get down to the essentials of life and find time to think and to live. The old monks and hermits knew this and we must learn it in our day.

S. D. A. & N. Academy

Among the new members of the faculty are Lieut. and Mrs. Edwin R. Cooke, who are residing at Grand and Ingram avenues. Lieut. and Mrs. Cooke have been living at Hollywood.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene D. Hofeller and Miss Margaret Hofeller spent a day recently with Gilbert and Theodore Hofeller Wednesday, returning to Los Angeles the same evening.

News reaches the academy that Willis E. Barnum, a recent graduate of the academy, has been appointed cadet colonel of the R. O.
T. C. cavalry at the University of Arizona for the coming year. He was ranking officer of the battalion during his senior year at the academy, and has been prominent in military work during his stay at the University of Arizona.

Splendid development in the musical organization of the academy are looked for this year. The band already is well organized, and was asked to play at the First Baptist church, on the occasion of a reception given to the navy men returning from Australia.

The following are on the list of recent visitors: Mr. and Mrs. De Witt C. Jennings, Hollywood, and
Maj. and Mrs. F. B. Gage, with Mrs.
Agnes Gage, also of Hollywood, who brought their son to the academy.

A very lively game of football was played recently on the academy grounds between the naval training station team and that of the academy. The score was 7 to 6 in favor of the visitors.

HEAVY PENALTY FOR
POISONING DOGS

According to Humane Officer Geo.
L. Minter, dog pets of San Diego
homes are being poisoned at the rate
of one or more a week and there is considerable danger that children may eat some of the deadly food. It is stated that between fifty and seventy-five dogs have died since Jan. 1
of poison administered deliberately.
The state law provides a fine of $500
and a two-year prison sentence for
the offense.

HEAVY PENALTY FOR
POISONING DOGS

According to Humane Officer Geo.
L. Minter, dog pets of San Diego
homes are being poisoned at the rate
of one or more a week and there is considerable danger that children
may eat some of the deadly food. It is stated that between fifty and seventy-five dogs have died since Jan. 1
of poison administered deliberately.
The state law provides a fine of $500
and a two-year prison sentence for
the offense.

FOOD FOR CHILDREN WHO TRAVEL

Many times, and especially during the summer months, mothers are forced to take their children on trips with them. During these trips, the parent is forced to contend with that ever-present and serious problem of food for the child.

As in almost every other case, the chief source of worry, during these periods, is the milk supply, its source, its purity and its food value. It is not always convenient to get market milk of dependable quality for, in many sections of the country, adequate facilities for its care are not provided. To meet the needs of mothers in these trying situations, science has provided a form of milk, conveniently carried and easily prepared. The cans are in two sizes, the one containing six ounces and the other sixteen.

Evaporated milk is just pure cows' milk with more than half of the water removed. None of its food value is lessened; in fact its digestibility is improved. It is easily mixed with water and is, undoubtedly, the most practical form of milk for use as a food for children. Some of the country's leading pediatricians recommend its use, employing the following formula:

From Sixth Week to Third Month.
Milk, evaporated ..... 6 ounces
Lime water ..... 3 ounces
Milk sugar ..... 2 ounces
Boiled water ..... 29 1/2 ounces
Seven feedings in twenty-four hours; 4 to 5 ounces at three-hour intervals during the day and four-hour intervals at night.

From Third Month to Fifth Month.
Milk, evaporated ..... 7 1/2 ounces
Lime water ..... 3 ounces
Milk sugar ..... 2 ounces
Boiled water ..... 29 1/2 ounces
Six feedings in twenty-four hours; 5 to 6 ounces at three-hour intervals during the day and a feeding at 10 p. m.

From Fifth to Seventh Month.
Milk, evaporated ..... 10 ounces
Lime water ..... 3 ounces
Milk sugar ..... 2 ounces
Boiled water ..... 29 1/2 ounces
Five feedings in twenty-four hours; 6 to 7 ounces at four-hour intervals, the last feeding to be given at 10 p. m.

From Seventh to Ninth Month.
Milk, evaporated ..... 11 ounces
Lime water ..... 3 ounces
Milk sugar ..... 2 ounces
Boiled water ..... 35 ounces
7 to 9 ounces at four-hour intervals during the day. Last feeding at ten at night.

From Ninth to Twelfth Month.
Milk, evaporated ..... 12 ounces
Lime water ..... 3 ounces
Milk sugar ..... 2 ounces
Barley water ..... 34 ounces
8 to 9 ounces at four-hour intervals during day. Last feeding at ten at night.

WISHING ON LOAD OF HAY

THE custom of wishing when a load of hay passes is common in the rural districts all over the country. It is a survival from that ancient nature worship which manifested itself in various cults and myths having to do with the spirit of vegetation, the personification of the "kindly fruits of the earth" as the embodiment of a god.

The growing crop is Osiris, Adonis or Balder alive and the harvested crop is the same gods temporarily dead. At the gathering of all crops—the killing of the god—the ancients were accustomed to practice solemn rites, many of which in a maimed form, exist among us today as popular superstitions. A load of hay is a gathered crop—it is the body of Balder which is passing, and a wish upon a load of hay is an appeal to the spirit of that god for a fulfillment of the wish.

Those who are inclined to question the survival of ancient religions in fragmentary form under the guise of current superstitions should consider that, without considering the significance of the fact at all, we still call

Among the NOTABLES

JOHN LOCKE

IN GREAT contrast to the undemocratic teachings of the German philosophers, are the gentler and far more liberal ideas of the great English thinkers.

There is Locke, for instance, the great English philosopher, born almost a century and a half before Hegel. He was born in Somersetshire, August 29, 1632. He studied at Oxford, and developed a fondness for politics, theology, medicine and philosophy and studied all of these. Thus he fitted himself to look at subjects from a mental, an abstract, a physical and a religious point of view—certainly taking a comprehensive attitude.

A discussion among some friends, one day, concerning the human mind, led to the beginnings of his "Essay Concerning Human Understanding," which was not compiled, however, until twenty years of work had gone into it. Troubled times in politics sent Locke and other liberal thinkers to take refuge in Holland. He was well in his fifties before he returned to England, where he received all of $150 for his copyrights on the great "Essay." He wrote, later, the "Reasonableness of Christianity," and died in 1704, in "sincere communication with the whole church of Christ by whatever names Christ's followers call themselves."

The whole sum of his teachings was universal toleration, freedom of thought and action, almost opposite to the preachings of the German thinkers.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

HANDS UNAFRAID

WHAT the world needs most, and which it cannot hire except in limited numbers are capable, willing hands unafraid to perform hard work in the face of complex difficulties.

And with these hands it needs sturdy backs, nimble feet and willing hearts, loyal to themselves and to others.

To feed, clothe and satisfy himself, man must constantly exert himself. This is the price he is compelled to pay for life.

If man fails to sow he cannot hope to reap.

And, likewise, if he stubbornly refuses to use and train his hands in the direction toward which they naturally incline, the likelihood is that he will go through the world at the tail end of the procession, blaming others for his failure when the fault really lies with his timid hands.

No two hands are cast in exactly the same mold.

Each hand has an individuality, and a peculiar ability and aptitude of its own, just as has the brain, the controlling force which directs the hand. The world wants hands detached from lusts and superstitions, disinterested in moments of excitement to double up into bony fists.

It wants hands with sensitive fingers and specialized knowledge, competent to perform accurately the work entrusted to them, whether they grip machinery, pound the typewriter, push the carpet-sweeper, embroider a dainty tapestry or play the piano.

If you will consider the cause of the rise or the fall of nations, you will find that it resulted mainly from the good or evil works of hands.

An industrious community shows its handwork in neatly painted houses, shaded streets and a general air of prosperity and contentment. Where the shacks are, where misery five days of the week by the names of heathen gods and two after the moon goddess and the sun god respectively; while of the months four are dedicated to heathen gods or goddesses, one perpetuates a very ancient heathen festival, and two are dedicated to deified Roman emperors. Which, it must be acknowledged, is a rather striking example of the survival in our daily lives today of fragments from ancient cults and mythologies.

YOUR Last Name

IS IT MONTGOMERY?

THERE is an interesting phase of the origin of names exemplified by Montgomery. To begin with there was in France a man named Gomerie. His was an old Teutonic name, Gomerh, from Goma. This Gomerie lived on a hill which was therefore called Mont Gomerie. This is a place near Lisieux in Normandy and a family of French hills, because they lived near this hill, were given the title of the counts of Montgomerie. Roger de Montgomerie was a kinsman of William the Conqueror and went with him to England where he led the center of his army at Hastings.

From this Roger de Montgomerie

the town and shire of Montgomery in Wales took their names and from them several men in turn took the name of Montgomery. In a great many cases the name was given to a place and the place in turn gave its name to a good many men who lived near it, but perhaps the facts can be more clearly traced in this case than in most instances. John Montgomery, who was a member of the Continental congress, was born in the north of Ireland in 1722. He came to the new world for a rather unusual reason—because he inherited a small fortune. Many first settlers came over to mend their fortune, but John came to spend his. He settled in Carlisle, Pa., and was a captain in the expedition against the Indians under Gen. John Forbes in 1758. The family has been distinguished by pioneers, missionaries, soldiers and naval officers.

SHIRLEY—This name has been traced to the old English first name Seaulis that also gave Sewell. However, as a surname Shirley was adopted from the manor of Shirley in Derbyshire. The family was well established in the reign of Edward III.

HELLER AND HELLIER—Apparently there is little or no connection between these two names. Heller is from the old English heller, meaning one who covers. It had the significance of thatcher or tiler, and it is therefore an occupational name akin to Tyler, Slater, Shingler, etc. Helye is a variation of the same name. Heller, however, is a German name, the first of the family here having been Christopher Heller, who was born near Worms, Germany, in 1688. He was one of the many Palatinates who came to this country in Colonial times. He was the founder of Heltetown, Pa. The Hellers lived in Nuremberg, Bavaria, in the Twelfth century.

SLOT-MACHINE OF THE STORMS

By WILLIAM CALHOUN

(© by Short Story Pub. Co.)

"LOOK, Wilson see what I've found!"

Bowen held in the hand a shining five-dollar gold piece which he had just picked up from the rocks.

We were on our annual outing. We had run up the river in a small steamer to the head of navigation. In a large rowboat, loaded with necessary camping outfit, we laboriously continued our course till we reached the wilderness. Here we found an old hunter and trapper named Gibbons, with whom we rested for a night. Gibbons had spent the evening telling tales of his adventures in that region. Just before retiring he told us of the cliff at which we were now snugly camped.

"You'll be apt to like it there. Plenty of game and the best fishin' along the river. A fine spring bubblin' out of the solid rock at the foot of the cliff. Can't recommend you to a better place. Always camp there when I'm up that way. Used to go there for money from the rocks," said Gibbons, warning us to the occasion. "For ten years, after every storm, I found gold coins scattered about on the flat rocks below the cliff. Sometimes there was much, sometimes only a little. I went often in mild weather, but never found gold except when a storm had passed over. Once I stayed a month, but not a thing did I get till a terrible wind came along, after which I found five ten-dollar gold pieces as bright as the blaze in the fire there, and though I watched for two weeks I found nothing else. Another time, when a cyclone had gone through, I found three twenty-dollar pieces. Spent a week tryin' to explain the mystery, but had to give it up. No human hand put that money there. It just rained out of the clouds. One day, when it was blowin' a hurricane, I heard something strike the cliff, as if it had been shot from the sky; then it fell jingling on the rocks below. Known that to happen several times.

"For ten years it was always the same old story, money after a wind and nothin' any other time. Eight years ago it stopped fallin' and, no matter how hard the wind blew from that day to this no more money has ever been found. I guess it has all rained out. I'll take you there tomorrow."

For a half hour he answered the questions our curiosity prompted, and then we went to our cots. On the morrow Gibbons guided us to the spot and, promising to return in a week, left us. We had established our camp under shelter of the precipitous cliff which overhung the river, eaten our supper, and were leisurely strolling about admiring the romantic surroundings, when Bowen found the money. Our surprise is now easily understood.

Under ordinary circumstances a man is surprised to find gold coins, but, with Gibbons' strange tale fresh in our ears, we stared at each other in speechless amazement. We looked the shining money over and over to make sure. We scanned the bald face of the cliff, glanced at the wild forest and the river, peered into the blue sky above, all in vain, for some clue as to the presence of the money. Then we tried for signs of recent human presence, but none existed. We searched for other coins, but found no more. Finally, we went to our couches in the tent, there to speculate and theorize on a possible explanation of the mystery, until, through sheer exhaustion, we fell into a slumber.

The next morning Bowen built a fire while I went to the spring for a pail of water. On my way I passed the edge of the steep cliff and along over the rock floor, level and white as a city pavement. I was returning when my eye caught the glitter of a twenty-dollar gold piece lying at my feet. In my excitement I called to Bowen and together we examined the rock thoroughly and found three pieces. As we had investigated well the evening before, it was clear the coins had arrived in some manner during the night. That any human being would deliberately put them there, even had it seemed possible that one could be near enough, was preposterous.

We went around to the other side of the highland, from which we could reach the top of the cliff, where we found ourselves on a grassy level of perhaps an acre in area. It was a beautiful spot, covered with trees and singularly free from undergrowth. The surface sloped gently away from the ledge, finally forming the floor of the dense forest in the rear.

Gibbons had told us of an Indian trader named Groom who had dwelt there in an early day and whose house was a favorite resort of Indians, trappers, and overland travelers for the Far West. When a lad, Gibbons had often seen the great log cabin full of strangers. At last the Indians were removed to other lands, the overland route gradually changed to better paths, and Groom was deserted by his old customers. One day he was found dead. He was buried beneath his hearthstone, and then the locality slowly drifted back to its primitive condition. All that remained of the house was a tall stone chimney, near the edge of the precipice. By this old ruin stood the trunk of what had once been a great sugar tree.

Nothing about the place, however, seemed to have any possible connection with the gold. The history of the spot gave no explanation of the presence of coins at the base of the ledge fifty years later. Bowen and I examined the chimney, but found naught save the ragged stones. The stubby old sugar tree by it creaked in the breeze. This forsaken acre furnished no trace at all, and we descended. We did little else for several days, except to fruitlessly investigate and theorize. Strangely, too, we found no more coins, though we watched persistently.

At the end of the week, according to promise, Gibbons arrived. He heard our experience with interest on only one point, the fact that the phenomenon should recur after years of cessation. To our conjectures he paid little attention.

"No use tryin'," said he skeptically. "I've investigated every nook and cranny. Spent ten years watchin' and pryin', off and on, 'round this old headland, crackin' my brain over the cause. Have sat all night and all day, more time than I'm years old, tryin' to discover the secret, and all I ever learned was to hear the sudden jingle of the metal when it struck the cliff in time of storm and rattled down. It wasn't thrown from the top, for I've heard it while sitting at the foot of the chimney up there in broad daylight. You may study it till you're old, and that's all you'll ever know."

As we discussed the matter a gale began blowing. It grew stronger rapidly and was accompanied by the rumblings of distant thunder. Huge black clouds approached with frightful velocity. In our location under the precipice, protected from the gathering storm, we could watch the trees lash each other like whips.

Suddenly, as if by magic, two gold eagles dropped straight from the clouds overhead and rang resonantly on the stones near. No chance this time for mistaken senses, as three of us witnessed their descent. They came from the storm-laden sky, no doubt at all about it. Then came another and another, and following them a shower of coins. It seemed a dozen or more were jingling around us. A fearful peal of thunder heralded a fresh burst of the angry elements and the wind raged with the fury of demons. We heard a deafening crash overhead and the old chimney came tumbling in a heap to the foot of the cliff, the sugar tree with it. Then the velocity of the wind began to slacken, the sound of crashing timber ceased, and the storm gradually subsided.

When our fears were somewhat allayed we began to reconnoiter. Near the heap made by the fallen chimney we found a distorted tube, resembling the gutters and conductors placed at the eaves of houses. It was battered, rusty and rotten with age and contained several heaping handfuls of coins and a number of musty parchments and papers. On examining the wreckage of the chimney we found that the tube had been carefully placed in a chamber specially arranged for its reception. Two slits had rusted in the sides of the tin, one a few inches from the bottom and the other higher up. It was evident that the heavy winds, shaking the sugar tree and the chimney, had made of the tube a nickel-in-the-slot machine, by forcing coins through the narrow apertures. After the coins had worked down to the level of the higher slit it was eight years before the second and lower one rusted through, thus causing the dropping to resume. As the tube, by the weathering of the chimney, lay inclined, it formed a sort of chute. A coin, once slipping through, slid along the spouting for a few inches and finally shot over the precipice; having the appearance of coming from skyward.

We found papers recording the honorable discharge of Malachi Groom as a veteran of the War of 1812, and a package of letters written by his sweetheart, Cecilia Bliss, concerning whom we learned some strange facts from a faded manuscript. She had been captured by the Indians. On Groom's discharge he had made diligent search and ascertained that she had perished at the stake a few feet from the old sugar tree. He gathered the ashes and buried them where the stake had stood and erected the stone chimney above the spot, adding to it the cabin that he might dwell near her resting place. On the will was the indistinct signature of the old soldier, bestowing the money to the finder, on condition that the letters be laid by Groom's side. Under Gibbons' guidance we reburied the letters beneath the old hearthstone near which the ashes of his sweetheart had reposed for ninety years.

Some friends were chatting with Mrs. Carter, the energetic young matron who, more than any other one individual, brought the Hollywood bowl into existence. "You remember Betty Stokes? Well, she went abroad to study music and already she's engaged to the son of a very wealthy man."

ALL RUN DOWN, NOW HEALTHY

"Honestly, in all my 15 years of experience as a nurse I have never known of a medicine that compares with Tanlac. It is the glowing tribute of Nurse M. E. Chappie."

"Time and again I have recommended Tanlac and always with surprising results. Some time ago my Mother complained of being generally run down and on the verge of a nervous breakdown. She had no appetite, her stomach was disordered, digestion weakened and her bowels were most irregular.

"Tanlac" came to her aid at once, brought on a vigorous appetite so that she began to eat with the greatest relish, and made the digestive organs function properly once more. In a short time she was well, happy and strong, and although over 80 years of age she is now vigorous enough to look after her household duties and go out quite a little, too. This is why I praise Tanlac and consider it the best tonic and health builder ever discovered."

What Tanlac has done for others it can also do for you. Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

THINGS FOR WINTER

WHEN the cucumbers are just finger size try this recipe: Company Sweet Pickles.

Take one pound each of candied cherries and layer raisins left in clusters two or three on a stem, six dozen of the Tiny Tim cucumbers. Put a quart of the best cider vinegar into a porcelain-lined kettle, add one pound of granulated sugar and boil to a sirup with two teaspoonfuls each of white pepper and nutmeg, one teaspoonful of mace and one-half teaspoonful of ground cloves. Bring the sirup to a boil, then add the cherries; when they are plump remove them with a skimmer and add the raisins. As soon as the raisins are plump, skim them out and add the cucumbers. Boil two minutes, they should be tender but not soft. Fill glass jars with cucumbers in layers, with the

SWEATERS VARY NECKLINES; LUXURIOUS WINTER COATS

WHAT is it, which to wear, is always in fashion, never out, something which is an essential for the joy and comfort to old and young, man, woman or child, especially appreciated by the schoolboy, schoolgirl and college student when crisp autumn days come on apace? Sweaters! An easy guess it is, for, as everybody knows, sweaters have become indispensable to our wardrobe program.

The matter of sweater selection is not very complicated this season, for the reason that the trend is mostly in one direction, namely, long sleeves.

When it comes to color, the up-to-date sweater is almost reckless. The sweater mode in the picture is a joy to behold, as far as color is concerned. Red, black and gray stripes meet themselves halfway to form this attractive knitted slipon, which, by the way, is individualized with a stylish flat V-neck as above mentioned.

Slipon sweaters of fine jersey are a popular sort just now. Rose and rosewood are favorite colorings with purple, perhaps, the most exploited shade of all. It is considered quite the proper thing to wear with these Striped Sweater with V-Neck.

There is variety in necklines, however, and gay color, with fine quality the determining factor in every instance.

Having passed through an era of frivolous sweater types, some more or less cheap and shoddy, we have arrived at the commonsense stage where genteel appearance and dependable service must feature for eligibility in the preferred class. Fashionists and manufacturers, apparently holding the thought that a sweater is no better than that of which it is knitted, are making it a point to use, for the most part, highest grade yarns, much of which is imported. Lightweight zephyrs, exquisitely prepared and dyed, mohair and rayon enter conspicuously into the development of the modern sweater.

It is well that the newest sweaters express versatility in regard to necklines, for when it comes to sleeves, the colorful sweaters matching hats which are either knitted or of felt.

Made of soft pile or nap fabrics in warm rich colors and nearly always provided with at least a fur collar, it is not difficult for winter coats to achieve dignity. Everywhere newly arrived models on display disclose the good taste of designers, who have made the season's new style features harmonize so well with the fabrics and trimmings used. Conservative but luxurious styling gives the new coats enduring charm, which is only one of the respects in which they resemble good fur coats. There is no nonsense about them and they are good for several seasons.

A great many coats have flaring hemlines and this characteristic of the new season's models is introduced in varied ways. Many dyed furs are used in collars, cuffs and trimming and old adage "variety is the spice of life" does not apply, most sleeves being long and close fitting, with a few instances of bell and frill below the elbow effects.

Speaking of fashionable sweater necklines, not only are turtle and crew necks in smart fashion, but there is a perceptible movement toward flat round and V-necks. This is a most acceptable fashion, considering that the separate fancy scarf is so voguish these days, for the new modish flat sweater necklines seem to extend a special invitation to these scarfs to come and lend their grace and colorful charm to lady's knitted ensembles.

COOKED CUCUMBERS ARE QUITE DELICIOUS

Good in Different Ways and Seem Like New Vegetable.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The crisp texture of cold, thinly sliced raw cucumber adds greatly to many salads, and for many people that is the only way cucumbers appear on the table. Cooked cucumbers are equally good in a different way, and to those who have not tried them they will seem like a newly discovered vegetable.

The United States Department of Agriculture says to peel and slice or quarter the cucumbers, removing the seeds if they are large. Then boil in a little water, salted to taste, for 5 or 10 minutes. Serve them buttered, with a little minced parsley, or in a cream sauce, plain or savory, or one with grated cheese in it.

Try baking cucumbers, after peeling and slicing them. Use either custard cups or a single baking dish, and cook them alone or combine them with a little celery or cooked carrots or other vegetable. Cover them with a vegetable stock or with tomato juice, adding buttered crumbs or grated cheese, or both, on top.

Here is a recipe for stuffed cucumber, open to many variations:

Stuffed Cucumber.

6 cucumbers	1 tablespoonful
1 1/2 cupsful canned	minced parsley
tomatoes, or 4	3 tablespoonfuls
small tomatoes (1	minced onion
pound)	1 1/2 cupsful bread
6 tablespoonfuls but-	crumbs
ter	1 1/2 teaspoonful salt
3/4 cupful chopped
celery

Cook the celery and onion in the butter until yellow, add the parsley and cook for two minutes. Cut the cucumbers in halves lengthwise without peeling, scoop out the contents and mix with the fried onion; add the other ingredients, cook five minutes to dry out slightly. Fill the shells with this stuffing and bake in a hot oven until slightly browned on top.

Green Peppers Stuffed With Corn Easily Made

Here is a recipe furnished by the United States Department of Agriculture:

6 green peppers	1 1/2 cupsful meat
2 1/4 cupsful fresh	stock thickened
or canned corn	with 2 table-
1/2 onion, cut up	spoonfuls flour
fine	1 1/2 cupsful bread
1 1/2 cupsful meat,	crumbs
chopped or	1/2 teaspoonful salt
ground fine	Dash of pepper

Remove the tops and seeds from the peppers and parboil in boiling water for two minutes. Remove from the water, drain, and put in a casserole. Stuff the peppers with a mixture of the corn, onion, meat, bread crumbs, thickened stock mixture, and seasoning, and bake. The mixture may be varied by using other materials such as rice and tomatoes. Cooked macaroni may be substituted for the bread crumbs.

DRYING PEACHES WITH HOME FACILITIES

Cookstove Driers Make the Work of Drying Quicker and Much Easier.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Peaches are usually dried unpeeled, although a superior variety is made by removing the skins. Select peaches for drying which are ripe but not soft. Wash, cut in half, remove stones and place in trays with the pit side up.

Many housewives use a lye solution for removing the skins. Dissolve two pounds of commercial concentrated lye in 10 gallons of water. When boiling hot, place the peaches in a wire or wooden basket and plunge into the solution for one to two minutes, moving the basket up and down to hasten contact with the lye.

Lift from lye when fine cracks or checks in the peel appear. Plunge immediately into cold water and move about to wash off the lye. Remove the skins by rubbing between the hands or with a brush. Wash to remove the adhering lye. Halve, take

To Fix Leaky Faucet Is Very Simple Operation

Faucets should never be jammed if they drip after moderate pressure on the handle. It is because they need new washers. Washers are small round disks about 1/4 inch thick; those of asbestos and rubber or fiber composition have largely replaced leather and are suitable for both hot and cold faucets. They cost little and are easy to put in after the water has been shut off, according to the United States Department of Agriculture in a new Farmers' Bulletin, No. 1426, "Farm Plumbing." This bulletin deals with the installation and care of simple plumbing in the rural home. The operation of replacing a washer is as follows: With a monkey wrench unscrew the cap nut over the stem packing at the top of the body of the faucet; take hold of the handle and turn it to the left to unscrew and to remove the stem from the body; with a small screw driver unscrew the washer screw at the bottom of the stem; replace the worn washer with a new one and replace the stem and cap nut. In making repairs of this kind it is a great convenience to have wheel handle valves installed on the fixture supply pipes just below the fixture.

Small water pipes closed by rust or other obstruction are more or less successfully opened by pushing a steel wire through, flushing with a powerful pump, forcing muriatic acid through, or using a swab or wire brush attached to a small flexible brass or steel rod. In long lines, the pipe may be opened at intervals and the cleaning be done section by section. If these remedies fail, the pipe should be taken up, cleaned, and relaid, or be replaced with new pipe.

Nuts in Sandwiches and Salads Are Delicious

Nuts are good in almost any kind of a sandwich, and when the school lunch is a problem, a filling of chopped nut kernels with raisins, dates, figs or prunes will prove a solution. Nuts and olives go well together in sandwiches, nuts with cottage or cream cheese and nuts with maple or plain brown sugar. It is a good plan to keep a jar of shelled nuts on the emergency shelf for these and other uses. Peanut butter as a sandwich filling is familiar to every one. It can be made at home by putting the roasted shelled nuts through the meat grinder and then stirring enough cream or melted butter to make a smooth paste.

A cream cheese ball can be rolled in chopped nuts and served as an accessory to almost any kind of salad. Celery stalks stuffed with nuts and cheese are often used in a similar way. A few nuts in a fruit, aspic or vegetable salad are a distinct improvement. Even in a potato salad they add an unusual touch. Boiled chestnut kernels make an excellent salad. When Persian walnut kernels are used in salad or for other purposes, in the raw condition, the little dark spot at the center of the kernel should be removed as it has a bitter taste.

KEEP LAMP BULBS CLEAN

Just as streaked windows will keep daylight out so will the dust that settles on an electric lamp bulb materially hinder the radiation of the illumination produced by the lamp bulb. Therefore good common sense shows that electric lamps and fixtures should be regularly and thoroughly cleaned. The light output will thus be considerably increased and the additional illumination obtained will only be that which formerly had been wasted because it could not radiate by reason of dust and dirt.

By Mrs. F. G. Greenfield

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Holt have leased a residence on Rockaway court for the winter. Mr. Holt is a well known magazine writer.

Dr. and Mrs. R. S. Penwarden and family, who spent the summer here in their cottage on Jersey court, are planning to move next week into their city residence on Grove street. They expect to build a large and permanent residence in Mission Beach.

Mrs. Marjority Fairbanks of Boston, Mass., a prominent landscape artist, has gone to Alameda for the winter, but will return to Mission Beach in the spring.

R. D. Neville and family, of Seattle, Wash., are spending the week here.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Hughes of Lansing, Mich., have rented the Van Dusen cottage on Strandway.

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Reed of Camp Point, Ill., spent the week-end here.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Knight of Alameda, Calif., rented the King cottage for a number of months stay, where Mrs. Knight will make her home while Mr. Knight, a civil engineer, is busy working in Lower California.

Mrs. Lee Barnhill was a guest at the new Mission Beach school last Wednesday.

Miss Bettina Greenfield of Ormond court, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Greenfield, played a piano solo at the Alice M. Allen Musical club entertainment held recently at Miss Allen's studio on Cape May avenue, Ocean Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. A. Wilson and daughter, Louise, of Portland, Ore., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Harris on Bayside Walk this week. Mr. Wilson is a druggist in Portland. His family is anxious to come to Southern California to live and they are looking the community over with enthusiasm.

Friday mornings are banking hours for the Mission Beach school children, the higher grade pupils being the tellers.

RADIO RECOGNIZED AS

HOUSEHOLD REQUISITE

As a great factor in keeping the home fires burning, radio has become almost a household requisite. Nothing has done more to promote the home-loving instinct than the ever growing popularity of this great pleasure-giving and educational invention.

From this one may fairly reason that wherever the installing of radio sets is on the increase the home-loving instinct is certainly not on the wane. And, since the broadcast program is essentially a thing to be enjoyed by the family circle, it is to home folks the radio will cater.

Seldom has the human demand for novel entertainment found so admirable a combination. As the call for more radio service grows, so also grows the attraction of the home. And as the attraction of the home becomes stronger, so the call for better broadcast programs becomes more insistent and deserves being heeded by producers.
